

DUBLIN CORE METADATA ELEMENTS										Justification
Likely created by you			Likely available form the source website
Identifier	Description	Type	Creator	Publisher	Title	Date	Format	Rights	Subject
An unambiguous reference to the resource, which can reference the format of the resource (e.g. IMG00x for an image, VID00x for a video etc.)	An account of the resource, which may include but is not limited to an abstract or a free-text account. Any description copied from an existing source (e.g. image database) should be referenced.	The nature or genre of the resource. The minimum requirement here is to specify the type of media as specifically as possible (e.g. if it is raster image or a vector graphic).	An entity primarily responsible for making the resource. Examples of a Creator include the person, organization or service that created the item	An entity responsible for making the resource available. It should include the full URL at which the image can be found.	A name given to the resource. Typically, a Title will be a name by which the resource is formally known.	The date of creation, if available, recorded in the format DD/MM/YYYY	The file format of the resource. This can include additional technical metadata (e.g. Portable Network Graphics (PNG), 3840 x 5760px for an image)	Information about rights held in and over the resource. Typically, rights information includes a statement about various property rights associated with the resource, including intellectual property rights, licences and copyright restrictions.	The topic of the resource. Typically, the subject will be represented using keywords, key phrases, or classification codes. Examples include keywords, theme names and subcategory names used by the Publisher.	For each resource, provide a brief justification for your reasoning on why this might be a useful resource for your debate topic. Your justification should draw on the design evaluation criteria from Week 2 and should reflect the principles underlying your overarching design choices.
